A 9-man delegation representing the Korea's Olympic Judo team is scheduled to arrive in Kansas City tomorrow afternoon for a 10-day visit in this area.

Four of the members were finalists in the world championships in Sao Paulo, Brazil. The team will present demonstrations and clinics in several local high schools and at the Kansas City and Topeka police academies.

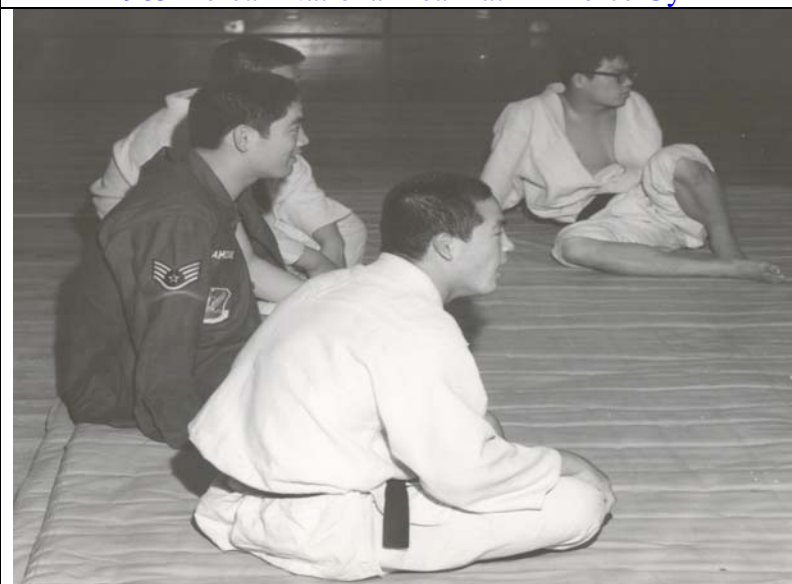

On November 7 they will be officials at the Korean Central division judo championships in the War Memorial building here when 200 competitors from 11 Mid-West and Western states are expected. Jim Harrison is director of the Korean federation.
